Meteorologist's View

There will be strong sunshine at times throughout the day and UV levels will be high or very high, so sun protection is advised.

Forecast for Monday 26 Jul 2021

Weather: Dry with clear periods during the early hours with some short lived fog patches in the valleys around dawn. Remaining dry with sunny spells through the morning, but patchy cloud will build giving the risk of isolated showers in the middle of the afternoon. These should be short lived and soon die away to leave a fine, dry evening with late sunshine.

Maximum wind: Westerly 10-15mph.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: 70% becoming 90% or better by mid morning.

Visibility: Generally very good with excellent clarity, however locally poor in any short live valley fog around dawn. Some fair weather cloud will develop in the morning on slopes above 900m, occasionally covering the higher summits and obscuring views on the highest routes, but this cloud should lift clear of the summits in the afternoon. Any showers will briefly obscure views of nearby hills.

Temperature: Valleys: Plus 11 Celsius becoming Plus 22 Celsius.
At 800m: Plus 14 Celsius.
Freezing level: Well above the summits.

Wednesday	Occasional sunny spells interspersed by heavy showers which may be thundery at times with a risk of hail. Moderate southwesterly winds. Freezing level well above the summits.
Thursday	Another unsettled day with bright spells and occasional showers, these turning heavy and perhaps thundery at times in the afternoon. Brisk west to northwesterly winds.
